It's Show-Off Time

Welcome to our second annual Insider's Guide to Concours d'Elegance. It provides a comprehensive roadmap to the significant 2015 concours in the United States.

At their heart, concours are simply car shows that have a more formal organization than a show-and-shine. But whether at Amelia Island or a local cars and coffee, any gathering of enthusiasts and their cars is really a celebration of great design, innovative engineering and meticulous preparation. Car show or concours, at their core both are about the same thing: a love of the automobile.

One of the hallmarks of a top-flight concours is the way the classes are curated and displayed. There will be a logic that links one class to the next, and the overall vision of the event will be clear.

I especially enjoy seeing a class that has multiple examples of the same model. Looking at several of the same cars — from the Ferrari 250 TRs at Pebble to the Datsun 240Zs at Forest Grove — and noticing how each has become different over the years — is like being involved in an archaeological dig.

Enjoy this guide, and let it help you create dreams for new adventures. Make your plans now to attend shows you are familiar with — and some that are new to you.

Adventure awaits. — Keith Martin ■

Preserve or Restore?

A decayed barn find is probably a better restoration car than preservation car

By Donald Osborne

"Dirt is a distraction ... though it must be conceded that concours guests often like it"

It may be difficult to believe, but 2015 will mark the 14th year that the Pebble Beach Concours d'Elegance has featured separate classes for Preservation vehicles.

Visitors to Pebble Beach 2001 stumbled upon a small atoll of cars with dull paint, cracked upholstery and deteriorated bright trim in the center of a vast sea of more-perfect-than-new automotive jewels on the 18th Fairway alongside Stillwater Cove.

Some of those 2001 onlookers were surprised and delighted, while others were confused or dismayed.

Unrestored cars had been shown at Pebble Beach before 2001, generally alongside a restored example of the same model as an educational display. FIVA, the Fédération Internationale des Véhicules Anciens, is a Paris-based international organization which promulgates a set of rules to help meet its mission to "Preserve, Protect & Promote" historic vehicles, "ensuring that authentic examples of our automotive past are available for future generations."

FIVA first presented a trophy to an unrestored, preserved vehicle on display at Pebble Beach in 1999 — a 1933 Marmon V16 Le Baron Victoria.

The 2001 Preservation Class showed cars that were all pre-war, a classification referring to vehicles predating World War II, and the winner that year was a 1919 Locomobile. In the years that have followed, the field of study, discovery and discussion of preservation vs. restoration has grown exponentially at the same time — and at nearly the same pace — as an almost-blind frenzy in the collector car marketplace surrounding the myth and magic of the "barn find." More on that later.

What is a preservation car?

Since 2007, the Pre-War Preservation Class at Pebble Beach has been joined by a Post-War (World War II) class. Showing the popularity and importance of this category, the 2015 Pebble Beach Concours d'Elegance will feature yet a third Preservation Class — this one devoted solely to unrestored Ferraris, one of this year's featured marques. Obviously, there is great interest.

So, what makes a car worthy of preservation? Looking further, what makes it an object to be admired and acknowledged on the concours lawns of the world?

A good place to look for answers is among the people who put on shows — and those who judge them. Bill Warner, founder of the Amelia Island Concours d'Elegance, is a man who always gets to the heart of the matter in a few words.

Warner said: "A preservation car represents a standard by which restorers can refer to accurately restore a similar car." It's a vehicle that can serve as a window into the past, the intentions, techniques and methods of manufacture that resulted in the car as it was delivered new.

But, of course, cars are meant to be used, and using them as intended will consume some of the original components and create wear and loss in others.

So at what point do we draw the line at what is useful as historic artifact and what instead might be a really interesting restoration project and not something to put on display as it exists? In addition, how are these factors to be taken into account in judging at events?

For help in determining guidelines for preservation vs. restoration, arguably the best place to turn is Dr. Fred Simeone's 2012 book, The Stewardship of Historically Important Automobiles.

Dr. Simeone's collection of rare and mostly unrestored competition cars forms the heart of the Simeone Foundation Automotive Museum in Philadelphia, PA. Dr. Simeone has long been passionate — and more than slightly opinionated — about the subject of preservation. His book assembles a number of insightful essays from very experienced and knowledgeable people in the field — in addition to studies of specific cars — to consider vehicles as historical objects as well as dynamic, kinetic, living sculpture.

Bill Scheffler was a founder and Chairman of the Fairfield County Concours d'Elegance, a well-regarded show held in southern Connecticut from 2003 to 2011.

A notable feature of the Fairfield Concours for many years was a class with preservation and barn-find vehicles. A special display in 2005 showed three Jaguar XK 120 OTS cars. One was a superbly restored car from the collection of the late Malcolm Pray. Another was a very original example in long-term family ownership that belonged to ex-Christie's car department head and FIVA judge Miles Morris. The third car was completely body-stripped for restoration and owned by Fairfield Concours co-founder John Shuck. The three cars showed clearly the differences between the categories and made it clear how each could be appreciated.

At the Fairfield County Concours, the preservation/barn-find class was subject to a People's Choice award rather than a points-based system. It relied on the emotional connection the visitors made to the cars on display. Admittedly, more often than not, it was the dirty, dusty, cobwebbed barn find that most often caught the public's eye.

"...preservation in the best case is a running car, technologically equipped as new save what has been required to make it run today, with an unaltered finish in the best condition it can be brought to," Scheffler said. "Dirt is a distraction and irrelevant,

Bloomington Gold judges factor in a car's use and wear

The Bloomington Gold system

Perhaps no one has more to say on the subject of showing and judging unrestored cars than David Burroughs, the powerhouse behind the ZZenith Grading System and CEO of Bloomington Gold.

Burroughs firmly believes that with formalized and conscientious training and guidance, judges can be developed who will be able to more accurately identify and reward those vehicles that can be used as historical markers.

though it must be conceded that concours guests often like it.”

Judging a preserved car

To keep judges from comparing apples to oranges to arugula, some framework must exist for a concours judge who is not evaluating better-than-new cars.

Miles Morris has for many years judged the pre-war Preservation Class at Pebble Beach and the FIVA Preservation Award at a number of events. He had a hand in the development of the FIVA/HVA judging form, a traditional 100-point system which works in the same manner as one for a restored car — except it makes deductions for replacements while taking into account appropriate, consistent and logical wear on surfaces and materials.

Morris feels quite confident, as do several other notables in the field, that we are not very far from a time when a truly spectacularly preserved car would take overall Best in Show honors at Pebble Beach.

This already occurred at the Fairfield County Concours in 2011, when an unrestored 1940 Bauer Duesenberg SJ took the top prize. In addition, a wonderfully original 1938 Alfa Romeo 8C 2900 Touring Spider from the Bahre Collection swept all before it at The Elegance at Hershey in 2013.

To help account for the consumable nature of motor vehicles and the relationship of aging to wear, the ZZenith Grading System offers tiered levels for cars at least 20 years old with very specific required percentages of original surfaces, materials and components in order to qualify for grades. The grades are:

- Limited (50% unaltered/ unrestored in areas, 20 years old)
- FingerPrint (50% unaltered/unrestored throughout, 20 years old)
- BluePrint (75% unaltered/unrestored throughout, 30 years old)
- ZZenith (90% unaltered/unrestored throughout, 40 years old)

It's tough to preserve a barn find

All interviewed for this article were unanimous in the opinion that a barn find — a vehicle left to decay in a field, barn, garage, lean-to or basement, having lost all its paint, upholstery and perhaps much of its bodywork and chassis to the elements — was much more likely to make a good restoration candidate rather than becoming a useful insight to the past.

So, this makes a truly preserved vehicle, one that has always been loved and cared for — even if not much used — a prize more than worthy of a display in our most honored events. ■

Many Parts To a Great Concours

It's all about car history, technology, design — and, most of all, car people

By Bill Warner, Founder and Chairman, The Amelia Island Concours d'Elegance

Preserving paragons of design and engineering

This is going to sound strange, but I am not a “concoursey” kind of guy. I am a car guy through and through — but not to the point the cars are not to be driven and enjoyed. When I founded The Amelia Island Concours d'Elegance 20 years ago, there were multiple reasons for me to accept the challenge.

The most important was to have a quality automotive event that would benefit local charities in my home town, Jacksonville, FL. The concours would allow me to exercise my enthusiasm for all things automotive and give back to the community.

Lots of moving parts

There are many reasons that concours are important.

A true concours celebrates various historical eras or milestones in the automotive world. It can — and should be — a history lesson on the contributions of the automobile to our freedom. It should also illustrate the evolution of the automobile from the late 1800s to where we are today.

A concours should celebrate great design and innovation. A great concours should also showcase the exceptional talents of the restorers and recognize the contributions of designers, racers, and titans of industry.

A great concours is also an opportunity for manufacturers to do “heritage marketing,” and no one understands that better than the German big three: Mercedes-Benz, Porsche and BMW.

Concours drive a small industry that restores and preserves the great cars. Imagine where we would be if there was no place to showcase these talents and preserve these paragons of design and engineering. A Saturday night cruise-in recaptures those moments we all remember from our teens, but a good concours presents our automotive history in themes that educate and entertain.

Giving back

A successful concours gives back to the community both monetarily and educationally. It is imperative that we expose our youths to the history and career opportunities available in the automotive industry. To that end, we at Amelia Island invite 500 high school students to our Friday afternoon seminar and tailor the presentation to them. The subject of the seminar may be car design, history, racing heroes or technology.

It is important that the team that runs a concours recognizes that the program is about people. To strictly focus on the cars — and not the people who designed, engineered, manufactured and raced them — is to miss the point of the concours experience.

Fifty years from now, the cars we feature will most likely still be around, albeit in the hands of others, but the people we admire and revere most likely will be at room temperature. So when my staff and I sit around the table to decide which cars to showcase, which drivers to honor, and which seminars we wish to have, it always comes back to the people. Our goal is to give our patrons a life experience they will never forget. ■

FEATURED CONCOURS

Concours d'Elegance at French Lick

Date: October 2–4, 2015

Location: French Lick Resort, 8679 West State Road 56, French Lick, IN 47432

Admission: $15 in advance, $20 at the gate; children 12 and younger are admitted free

Featured marques: The British Invasion

Website: www.frenchlickconcours.com

Telephone: 812.936.5926

Year founded: 2007 (formerly known as the Louisville Concours d'Elegance)

Beneficiary: Kosair Children's Hospital

Host hotel: French Lick Springs Hotel, 8679 West State Road 56, French Lick, IN 47432

Location description: Set amid the rolling, wooded countryside, French Lick Resort, with two grand hotels — West Baden Spring Hotel and French Lick Springs Hotel — four golf courses and spas, is considered one of the Midwest's grandest resorts. The concours will be on the French Lick Resort's Valley Links Course.

Tour: The October 4 Driving Tour will leave the West Baden Springs Hotel at 8 a.m. to explore the rolling back roads of southern Indiana. The tour will stop at Clem Lange's collection of 60 classic cars — mostly from the Brass Era. Then the tour will travel to Joey Lange's collection of muscle cars. The entire tour will then enjoy a barbecue lunch at the Fuhs-Lange Farm.

Last year's Best of Show: 1929 Stutz Lancefield coupe from the collection of Richard and Irina Mitchell of Montgomery, TX

Quick take: Now in its third year at "America's Best Historic Resort," the Concours d'Elegance at French Lick is primed to become one of the premier automotive showcases in the country.

Hilton Head Island Motoring Festival & Concours d'Elegance

Date: October 23–November 1, 2015

Locations: Hilton Head Island, SC, and Savannah, GA

Admission: Various ticket prices/packages available. Tickets go on sale during spring 2015. Visit www.HHIMotoringFestival.com for details

Featured marques: Chrysler Corporation

Website: www.HHIMotoringFestival.com

Telephone: 843.785-7469

Year founded: 2002

Number of cars entered last year: More than 400

Host hotel: The Westin Hilton Head Island Resort & Spa, 2 Grasslawn Ave., Hilton Head Island, SC 29928, 843.681.4000

Concours location: The Port Royal Golf Club, 10 Clubhouse Drive, Hilton Head Island, SC 29928

Tour: Yes

Last year's Best of Shows: Concours d'Elegance, 1938 Bugatti Type 57C from the collection of Richard Workman of Windermere, FL; Car Club Jamboree, 1930 Packard 733 phaeton owned by Eugene Wescott of the Classic Car & Truck Club of Beaufort, SC

Quick take: Known best for its white sandy beaches and what seems like an infinite number of golf courses, Hilton Head Island welcomes world-class automobiles to the tranquil barrier island in late October. Playing host to some of the country's finest collector automobiles, Hilton Head Island sets a beautiful backdrop with its majestic live oaks and draping Spanish moss. With everything from jaw-dropping classics to two-wheeled machines to wooden boats, Hilton Head Island brings out the car lover in all of us. Don't forget the Savannah Speed Classic on October 23–25. ■
